Skills in the East Midlands: towards a shared evidence base

Tuesday 4th December 2007
9:30 – 14:00

Government Office for the East Midlands, Nottingham

Intelligence East Midlands and the East Midlands Cultural Observatory would like to invite you to the next meeting of the East Midlands Intelligence Network.

Delivered in collaboration with the Employment, Skills and Productivity Partnership (esp), this event is the first of two and will:

- Disseminate the latest information on skills in the East Midlands including findings from the Skills Survey, the principle source of information on individual skills needs.
- Offer responses to the findings from esp partner organisations such as the Learning and Skills Council.
- Increase understanding of the skills evidence available in the region and identify gaps.
- Enable participants to discuss the implications of the evidence for the region and their organisation.

As well as keynote speakers there will be opportunities for questions, round-table discussions and a networking lunch.

A follow up event in the new year will explore the evidence and implications for a variety of sectors in more detail.

Do you have new or interesting evidence on skills in your sector or local area? Do you have a project you would like to discuss with the network? If so we'd like to hear from you. We can accommodate short presentations in the programme of planned events or include papers in delegate packs. We are particularly keen to involve local and sub-regional organisations in sharing their evidence and perspectives.

For more information on the Intelligence Network contact Rachel Moreton, IEM Coordinator or Abigail Diamond, Cultural Observatory Director on info@regenerationem.co.uk or by phone on 0870 240 4459.
